SPEER'S

SAMBUCA

Catawba Port Grape & P. T. Sherry Wine

The above Wines are made by Mr. Speer, whose reputation as a wine grower stands pre-eminent. They are well established and long known by the Medical Profession as the most reliable and valuable wines to be had.

SPEER'S SAMBUCA WINE,

celebrated in Spain and Portugal for its medicinal qualities, highly esteemed by eminent physicians, used in European and American Hospitals and by the first families in Europe and America.

Excellent for weak and debilitated persons, the aged and infirm, improving the appetite and benefiting the ladies and children.

As a Diuretic

It imparts a healthy action to the Kidneys, and Urinary Organs, very beneficial in Dropsy, Gout and Rheumatic affections. Also,

Speer's Port Grape Wine.

Is pure juice of the Oporto Grape recommended by Physicians as possessing medical properties superior to California or Imported Wines.

☞ None genuine unless the signature of "ALVAH SPEER, Passaic, N. J." is over the cork of each bottle. For sale by Druggists and Fancy Goods Dealers. Speer's Standard Wine Bitters.

THE LATE STORM IN THE PROVINCES. The storm throughout the British provinces was very great. Nova Scotia part of it was felt, and made subject to the observation which prevailed generally. As we have no account of lives lost, New Brunswick suffered great pecuniary loss, and a sad tragedy occurred in connection with the loss of the barque Gerli and all of the seven persons on board. The vessel had only been launched three weeks previously, was owned in St. Andrews and was on her voyage in ballast from that place to New River in ballast with deals for Liverpool. The keel had been prepared and the stevedores were on board, and had disposed themselves for the night. The vessel was moored near the New River Ledge, a black frowning rock just cropping above an ordinary high water surface. When the blast drove down upon her she dragged and was soon over the ledge and dashed, broadside on, up the ragged and precipitous cliff. The wind and the tide of the huge waves which landed her there subsided, have hitched her in the land, and when the rocks were bared, as the waters rushed back, she rolled with one awful lurch down again into the lake, breaking shrouds, stays and masts like straws, and burying the men at once into eternity. Not a soul could stand near the scene on that night, and no one living saw the doomed vessel drift to her fate, but the bottom, uncabled and the top ground away on one side to the tops of the floor timbers, as she, worked up and down the rocks, point clearly to the fact that with one great effort she was overturned and the work of destruction was accomplished. The bodies of the drowned men were found near the wreck.

While nothing unusual occurred at Halifax, other parts of Nova Scotia suffered severely. Hundreds of thousands of dollars' damage was done. At Annapolis, early on Monday evening, the water stood knee deep in the streets and flooded the stores, carried away lumber from the wharves and caused great devastation. Between Annapolis and Bridgetown the passenger train had to be stopped several times that repairs of the track might be made before the train could proceed—gaps of hundreds of feet presenting themselves. The railway bridges between Wolfville and Kentville were all more or less damaged; it will take several days to repair them. On the railroad between Windsor and Grand Pre part of the track has been washed away—rails, sleepers, &c. At Windsor the dykes broke, marshes were submerged, hundreds of sheep which were penned up for market were drowned, and many cattle destroyed. The churches there suffered; in the Methodist Church water several feet deep stood in the vestry. At Wolfville a schooner had been carried hundreds of feet out of the river and into a field. No other marine disasters were reported.

The Western Union Telegraph Company lose heavily by the storm. It is not long since they made a heavy expenditure on their poles and wires, prepared for a more extensive business under the reduced rates.

The provincial papers are full of accounts of casualties—principally the blowing down of houses, barns, churches, vessels ashore, bridges carried away, towns and villages inundated, crops carried away, sheep and cattle drowned, &c. The record is a melancholy one, and it will be long ere some localities recover from the disasters to which they have been subjected by wind and flood.

CURIOUS CASES. We have already noticed the fact that the sum of $10,000 issue pending the proof, asserted by prevarication behalf of the Republican State Committee of Concord, N. H., that Hon. G. Fogg, editor of the Independent Democrat, that city, was, as his accusers claimed, editor to the Republican party, and had engaged in the summer of 1868 in a conspiracy with Hon. John G. Sawyer, Democratic candidate for Governor of New Hampshire, and delegate to the Democratic National Convention at New York, to nominate Chief Justice Chase for President—Mr. Fogg to support the nomination in his newspapers. The examination in the case comes off, as we are informed, this week, at Concord, before Hon. E. Rollins, Chairman of the State Republican Central Committee, and Hon. Anson S. Marshall, Chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee—these parties being considered competent to decide the question of political treachery, on the contrary, on hearing evidence. Each party—as has been stated—has deposited $10,000 to abide the result of the hearing, but there is reported to be some difficulty as to the precise condition of the deposit. This is a novel way of deciding a political controversy. The tribunal is composed of honorable men, and their decision, no doubt, will be a fair one. If the hearing is public it will create much excitement.

JOHN H. LYNDE, - - PROPRIETOR.

TUESDAY, OCT. 12, 1869.

The conspiracy concocted by Charles A. Dana, James Fisk, Jr., Jay Gould, and other political tricksters and gold gamblers against Mr. Abel R. Corbin, is well understood to be directed at President Grant.—Corbin is of very little account to them; he is a mere whipping-post. Dana never can forget that Gen. Grant luckily did not appoint him Collector of the Port of New York. Fisk and Gould very well know that he could not be induced to give his influence to the Erie clique and the general horde of gold gamblers will hold him responsible for the smash of the recent gold corner. Failing to find any real fault with the President that weakens his standing with the American people, they seek to implicate his distant relatives, as the fellow who could not whip the big brother content himself making faces at his sister. Dana's paper continually parades the fact that Corbin is Grant's brother-in-law. Indeed it never mentions Corbin without the accompanying statement of relationship. What possible effect this can have in the judgment of Gen. Grant by honest, intelligent people it is impossible to guess. But it is very evident that as facts will not answer their purpose at all, vile insinuations are expected to operate to the prejudice of an administration that is above suspicion.

And still another side has been discovered to the Democratic party. The catalogue of its principles is so long, and their nature so contradictory, that it is almost impossible to keep track of them. We now find them in Mississippi taking ground against the Republican candidate for Governor, because he was a rebel during the war. That is the way they put it, at least. Can we suit them? We nominate a consistent Union man, and who suffered prosecution for the sake of his opinions during the war, and he is immediately and savagely denounced as a scallawag; we nominate a northern man who has sought a home in the South, and they leap upon him to crush him because he is a carpet-bagger; we nominate a man who acted with the Confederacy, but who is repentant and willing to accept the situation, and he is maliciously set down as doubly a traitor. The fact is, the Democracy are characteristically and solely an opposition party, and without being on the opposite side they would not exist at all. In this cause they are ever ready to expose their old associates and natural allies, the rebels. But more than all they oppose Mr. Alcorn in Mississippi, because, having been a rebel, he declines to indorse the Ku Klux policy of Southern Democracy, and favors honest reconstruction.

The Boston Commercial Bulletin is publishing a series of very interesting sketches entitled "Campaigns in Wall Street," which are written by an old campaigner, and give a deeper insight into the way fortunes are made and the public slaughtered, in the arena of bull and bear betting than anything which we have seen in print, and presented in that in most readable and attractive form. From the last number we extract an account of one of the pork speculators.

"Among the other remarkable speculations of the year 1861 was that in Pork.—This article, to the dismay of all who love pork and beans, rose from $9 per barrel, in 1860, to $63 per barrel in 1864. Some time previous to the fall in gold, which has just been chronicled, the author bought for $600 a call for 500 barrels running for sixty days. When gold struck 247 on its down grade the profits which had accrued on this call were something over $2000 net; and, on the strength of this he sold $20,000 gold at 216, and increasing his interest in the market as it fell, until when it struck 230 his profits were $10000 and upwards. Letting the profit on these short sales stand as a security for his contracts, he closed up his pork call at a handsome profit—nearly $1500. Adding this amount to his other profits he kept on selling gold. When it rose from 214 to 228 had those contracts been closed his balance would have only been $1000. But this upward spasm soon passed away and gold returned its previous course down, and when it reached 190 a few days later he covered his shorts. His profits were 30,000 and some odd dollars from this spec. Then wheeling about he bought $200,000 at 190. Down slid gold to 187, up she shot again to 200.—Twenty thousand was realized by this move. In twenty-six days the aggregate profits were thus $62,000 manufactured out of a pitiful $500. Lying on our laurels for three weeks we hopped with a philosophic indifference on the singular eagerness with which men pounced upon the phantom success in the field of speculation."

A contemporary recalls Governor Seymour's advice of last year, to "push the financial argument" in the political canvass. We should think it was time to recall it. The speeches of Commissioner Delano and Senator Sherman, and the letter of Commissioner Wells—all of which show by official facts and figures that, in the quarter ending on the 1st of October, fifty ten millions have been gained to the government, mainly by economy and an honest collection of the revenue, over the same quarter of last year—may be fairly called "pushing the financial argument." This is what Sheridan at Five Forks called "pushing things."

Speaking of a prominent Democratic orator now on the stump in Ohio, the Charleston Courier says that he "first was a temperance man, then a Republican, then a Conservative, and now at last, he has come out entirely from among the Philistines, and become a thorough, uncompromising Democrat." The Courier could not have expressed more forcibly, if it had tried, how wholly separated are a temperance man and a thorough, uncompromising Democrat.

THE CABINET AND THE HORNET. The Washington dispatch to The Journal of the 11th says: "It is rumored in Cuban circles to-night that the matter of the seizure and detention of the Hornet will be brought to the attention of the Cabinet, on Tuesday, when papers, it is said, will be presented by both the Cuban Junta and the representative of the Spanish Government. As the trial of the case before the U. S. Commissioner is fixed for to-morrow it is expected that by Tuesday the Administration will be in possession of all the facts, and will be prepared to pass upon the whole matter."

MOSBY, THE GUERILLA, PUGNACIOUS.—The rumor that a duel had been fought in the vicinity of Alexandria by Col. Boyd, the Military Sheriff of Fauquier county, and Mosby, the guerilla, is incorrect. The following letter, dated Oct. 3d, is Mosby's challenge, and, as it has not yet been replied to, it is not probable that there will be a hostile meeting:

"WARRENTON, Oct. 3, 1869.

SIR.—Your note of the 24 is evasive. If I omitted your offensive language it was because I desired no explanation or apology. My object has been to test whether you would fight as a gentleman, and to remove all pretext for further equivocation I now quote your objectionable language. You said that you could prove in Pennsylvania that I was a highway robber! I now demand satisfaction—not explanation or equivocation. Will you fight? Col. Smith has full authority to act.

Respectfully, your obt's servt,
Col. W. H. Boyd. JNO. S. MOSBY."

Franklin Pierce, whose decease has already been announced, was born in Hillsborough, N. H., Nov. 23, 1804, and graduated at Bowdoin College in 1824. He studied law and was admitted to the bar in 1827, commencing practice in his native town.

He joined his fortune with the Democratic party, then and for 30 years afterward the ruling party in his State. In 1829 he was chosen to the lower branch of the State Legislature, and being re-elected the next three years, was chosen Speaker in 1831 and 1832.

In 1833 he was first known in national politics, being elected to the House of Representatives.

Among his colleagues in the House were the Ex-Presidents Adams and Fillmore and Polk, who like himself afterwards attained to that position. Governor Briggs, Edward Everett and Rufus Choate are the principal names in the Massachusetts delegation, while George Evans and F. O. J. Smith are about the only members from Maine who have not sunk into oblivion. It could not be expected that a man of Mr. Pierce's modest ability could win distinction in a House so able as that was. In the exciting debates arising out of the financial condition of the country, he took no part, and in the next Congress almost the only speech of his which will be remembered, was one in which he took the side of the South and opposed the reception of the Abolition petitions which were then, in the first days of the Anti Slavery agitation, pouring in upon Congress. He made very few speeches, none of any note, and his views are to be gathered only from his votes.

In 1837 he was transferred to the United States Senate, in which he served 5 years, said then resigning his seat, resumed the practice of his profession in Concord. His party would have made him Governor or returned him to the Senate, but these positions he declined as well as the offer of a seat in Mr. Polk's Cabinet.

On the breaking out of the Mexican war, he volunteered, enrolling his name as a private soldier, but the President made him a Colonel, and subsequently a Brigadier General. He joined Scott's army at Puebla, received slight injuries at Contreras by falling from his horse and fainted in the battle of Churubusco. At the close of the war, he returned home and again resumed the practice of his profession. In 1850, he was a member of the Convention to revise the State Constitution.

In 1852 the Democratic National Convention nominated him for President.—Cass was the leading candidate on the first ballots, while Buchanan, Douglas and Marcy also received strong support. Gen. Pierce's name was not introduced until the 35th ballot. On the 49th he was nominated almost unanimously. Wm. R. King, of Alabama, was associated with him on the ticket, and the result of the election was unprecedented in the later years of the Republic. They received the electoral vote of every State, except Vermont, Massachusetts, Kentucky and Tennessee, which threw their votes for Scott. John P. Hale, the Anti-Slavery candidate, receiving no electoral votes. The popular vote was, Pierce, 1,601,274; Scott, 1,386,689; Hale, 155,825. The history of his administration needs not now to be written. The repeal of the Nebraska bill, the shameful attempt to force slavery on an unwilling people at the point of the bayonet, the filibustering movements which were openly carried on, all have branded it with a character which cannot be effaced. Peace reigned with all the world, in spite of some disgraceful acts of which the bombardment of Greytown is the most prominent.

In 1860 he was a candidate for renomination, but his strength in the Convention rapidly diminished, and on the 17th ballot James Buchanan was nominated as his successor. For twelve years he has lived in retirement from which he never emerged. Mr. Pierce married in 1834 Miss Jane Means, daughter of President Appleton of Bowdoin.

The political success of Mr. Pierce is attributable to good fortune more than to ability. In social circles he was popular, but his political influence, even during his administration of the public affairs, was never much regarded.

Ohio and Pennsylvania hold their State election to-day. The canvass has been animated on both sides. We are quite confident of success in both, as our friends have excellent candidates and fight the battle on the square Republican platform. The Democracy should and consistently. Both States have been sufficiently close and variable heretofore to give great interest to them, and yet we cannot see how, judging from the votes of the past 10 years, the Democracy can hope to prevail in Oct[illegible] next. Here is the record

| | Dem maj | | Rep maj | Dem maj |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| [illegible] | | | 1865 | 20,986 |
| [illegible] | | | 1866 | 12,006 |
| [illegible] | 6,660 | | 1867 | 2,988 |
| [illegible] | | | 1868 | 17,382 |

[illegible] Pennsylvania has also been quite uniform. [illegible] Gov. Geary was elected in 1867 by about 22,000 majority. The vote for Auditor General in October, 1868, was as follows: Republican, 331,415; Democratic, 321,730; Republican majority, 9,677 in a total of 653,155 votes. The vote for President in the November was: Grant, 342,280; Seymour, 318,882; Grant's majority, 26,698 in a total vote of 646,662. In the Legislature last year the Republicans had 27 majority on joint ballot. There has been considerable speaking during the pending campaign, but no excitement, and the vote is likely to be small.

THE LOS AND SIGEL IMPRACTICABLE.—A dispatch from Washington a few days since announced that an interview had been held with President Grant by the leading steel manufacturers. They stated that involves of steel, from Sheffield, had been marked far below the cost of production, and assurance was given that a remedy should be applied. This charge is a sweeping one, and affects the integrity of foreign houses which have enjoyed for many years a high reputation for honesty, and it is barely possible that it is the preliminary step to an advance in the tariff, which would most seriously affect thousands in New England. So far as the house of Thomas Firth and Sons are concerned, their agents in this country, Messrs. Abbott and Howard, meet the charges boldly by the following letter:

"We will agree to accept for any quality and for any amount of steel which the firm of Thos. Firth & Sons has the capacity to make, the same prices, cash, in Sheffield, at which any steel of like quality has been invoiced by them for export to the United States within the past twenty years."

THE PURCHASE OF ST. THOMAS.—A Washington dispatch to the New York Post says steps were recently taken by the State Department to obtain from Denmark an extension of the time for the ratification of the St. Thomas treaty, and it is now learned that this has been granted, so that the matter will come up before the Senate at its next session. The feeling in Government circles continues to be growing more favorable to the purchase.

Political and Personal.

Dana complains that "Grant is not the same man whom we knew in the war." But you know, Dana had an office during the war, and now Grant refused to make him Collector of New York.

The Washington correspondent of the Chicago Tribune learns that James Fisk, Jr., aspires to go to Congress in place of S. S. Cox.

The aspirants for the Louisiana United States Senatorship, are John S. Harris, the present incumbent, John Ray, a native of the State, and Charles Lowell, of New England birth.

Ten States have thus far appointed delegates to the St. Louis Convention in favor of the removal of the national capital, and three more are expected to be represented.

Ex-Senator Wade, in a letter to the Republican Executive Committee, expresses his confidence in the success of the Republicans in the coming State election, and adds: "It is not possible that the people will desert an Administration, thus far the most successful in our history."

The Cleveland Herald, alluding to the inconsistencies of the Labor Reform resolutions at Worcester says: "One denounces all law [illegible] distinction in favor of [illegible] nobility, or pursuit, [illegible] directly against the [illegible] labor. 'You pays, takes your choice.'"

Rouse the System.

It is a good thing to pass through life alive. Yet thousands are thus under the condition of languor and debility. They complain of no positive disease, they suffer no positive pain, but they have no relish for anything which affords mental or sensuous pleasure to their more robust and energetic fellow beings.

In nine cases out of ten this state of lassitude and torpor arises from a morbid stomach! Invigoration depends on the energy both mind and body when the stomach is out of tune it is inadequate to give tone and regulate the distribution of vital energy to the starved, enervated, languid nerves.

Now, what does Hostetter's Stomach Bitters do? Those who have used them know that in an hour or two, in the morning, the stomach is in a condition that enables it to digest food. The answer to the question, which is on the tongue of every one of a quarter of a century, is easily given. Information is conveyed to the digestive organs by the presence of HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS. Do not, we implore you, resort to temporary remedies, but, if you are suffering from inactive bowels, impaired digestion, want of physical strength and energy, the great tonic which all the other organs demand is their natural stimulant, the upper stomach.

By the influence of a dose of this celebrated vegetable tonic and invigorant, the body takes on a double ration of vitality, the mind becomes active, the appetite is keen, digestion is perfect, and the person is in a condition to enjoy life. Impure blood becomes pure, the whole system is invigorated, and the blood, being purified, courses through the veins with healthful impetus, and imparts to every part of the system the elements of strength and vigor. Thus the whole system is invigorated, and the blood, being purified, courses through the veins with healthful impetus, and imparts to every part of the system the elements of strength and vigor. Thus the whole system is invigorated, and the blood, being purified, courses through the veins with healthful impetus, and imparts to every part of the system the elements of strength and vigor.

Miscellany.

WORK FOR OCTOBER. The Massachusetts Ploughman, in the course of an article on farm work for the month says:

All fattening animals should be pushed ahead as rapidly as possible now. They gain very fast at this season if properly fed and tended, and it is much more economical to make fat now than in the fall or in the early winter.

There are many little jobs about the farm and the buildings that can be attended to now by those who have their harvesting well in hand, better than at any other time. It is a capital time to paint up. If the buildings need it, the paint brushes and paste pots. If put on now that it dries when put on in hot weather. Any little repairs that may needed should also be attended to.

Fall plowing can be begun and in many cases well done this month. Fall ploughing may sometimes be recommended. In the first place the teams are now in better condition to work than they will be in the spring, and the plow may go deeper without over heating and wearying the cattle. And the frosts of winter will do much towards mellowing the surface, though the soil may not get well pulverized. Besides it saves a good deal of hurry spring work. Many pieces do not dry early enough in a wet spring to admit of early plowing and the consequence is a serious patt-back on the plowing in the spring. If the land is tolerably level there is no danger of washing so as to do no harm.

Winter apples require a careful handling if you would have keep well. Often a bruised one. In a barrel will start the whole lot and make short work of them. We know of no better mode than to pick carefully by hand and handle carefully in sorting over. With a ladder and two basket sets for sorting, the first and second classes can be kept separate without any great amount of difficulty. It seems slow work to pick apples by hand but we must remember that work is the price of luxuries and apples in the winter are little less than necessities.

SAVE THE LEAVES. The time is near when trees will shed their leaves. This is the grand harvest for the forest trees. Some of us have learned the lesson, and have taken advantage of it. But the great majority permit the leaves to lie where they go and in the country outside of the woods, they are scattered far and near, and are of but little benefit.

So it is with the coarse grasses and weeds: they are permitted to go down or dry on their stalks, their substance lost, or if they do it rotted, in the swamps. Hoards a fruitful source of good manure in great part wasted that might be made available. This manure is particularly calculated to benefit some kinds of vegetation, among which are trees, grape vines, and the small fruits. They have become accustomed to this kind of food, and thrive upon it. Apply plentifully. If the spots lie deep remove some of the soil and having gilled with leaves return all, or the greater part of it. Be not afraid to use the leaves plentifully, mixed with the soil, or if without it, simply lying on the surface of the ground enough soil to hold them.

We make it a business to use all kinds of vegetable refuse that presents itself. Where it is wanting it is a good plan to draw it from the forest, scatter it among the trees, and let it lie there until the soil requires working in the spring or early summer. We find it a good thing to leave the black surface undisturbed till the hot weather sets in. It will draw the heat when there is but little of it, and when it is most required. This is true especially with grape vines.

Hitherto we have taken time to save the leaves and disordered grasses. Do not think they are valueless because so light. There is substance for the weight, or rather much of it. The reason for this is that they afford a natural food for trees, shrubs and vines. Applied in abundance, with proper tillage, nothing seems to be better. Then gather the harvest of leaves and imitate nature's wisdom. [Utica Herald.

SOWING WINTER WHEAT. One of the most important preparations of the year is to be performed this month. The good crop of wheat grown this season in the eastern States shows that our soils are not exhausted, nor the weevil, irrepressible. A successful farmer in our neighborhood, now upwards of seventy years old, says that his yield yields were produced by the following preparation of the land.

It was ploughed and harrowed until it was mellow and in fine tilth. It was manured with dung, composed of horse and cow droppings and straw, the whole having been in a heap for six months. Much care was used to get clean seed for sowing. It was riddled through a hand riddle, to take out all small and half grown kernels and to obtain it of chess, cockle and other weeds. The seed was sowed before the 10th of September using one bushel and a half to the acre. The seed was drilled in, the drill being set about an inch and a half deep. After sowing, the ground was rolled. No grass was sown with the grain, but it was put in broadcast a fortnight after, experience having shown him that when grass was at the same time, it often got the start of the grain and overpowered it. In the following spring he hoed clover.

Another farmer assures us that he prefers manuring his wheat land six months before hand—that is, that, in, with the spring crop of corn. He put on enough in the spring for both the corn and wheat. At other times, he plums over a clover field and sows his wheat upon it with good success. He is in favor of topdressing his fields lightly with fine manure after the wheat is up, just before winter sets in. This helps to prevent winter killing. He is careful to sow only on warm, quick soil, well drained. Both of these farmers are successful wheat growers.
